The Lord wants you to live in His light.

Rev. 21:3-4 And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, “Look! God’s dwelling place is now among the people, and He will dwell with them. They will be His people, and God Himself will be with them and be their God. ‘He will wipe every tear from their eyes. There will be no more death’ or mourning or crying or pain, for the old order of things has passed away.”
(NIV)

What a day that will be! Can you even imagine what it will be like? I so look forward to this day. It is one of the main motivations in my life. I will finally be home. I will finally be with the One Who loves me more than anyone else could ever love me. Every tear will be gone. No crying, no pain, no disappointments, no heart-ache, no death. Complete healing and total fellowship with the Father. It literally doesn’t get any better than this!

And because that day is coming, what should this do in my life? It should motivate me more than ever to tell the good news to those who seem to have no hope. Their lives have been built on the faulty foundation of this world. Things that seem to be so important will fade away in the presence of the Almighty. That pension you are trying to build; the car you want to buy; the trip you want to take; they will all show to be useless when this day comes. All that will really matter in the end, is if you have given your life to the life-giver: Jesus Christ.

We should spend whatever time we have left on the things that really matter. We should be what He has called us to be: His ambassadors. 2 Cor. 5:20 We are therefore Christ’s ambassadors, as though God were making His appeal through us. We implore you on Christ’s behalf: Be reconciled to God. (NIV)

Dear LORD, we know this day is coming soon. Please put Your fire in us to go and tell those who have not yet heard the good news of the gospel. It should be our priority today. We cannot keep putting it off. Help us in our weakness. In Jesus Name, Amen
